The Egyptian point of view was conveyed today to the West Gezman Ambassador-designate, Hans-Georg Steltzer.

Foreign Minister Mohammed Zayyat summoned Mr. Steltzer to the headquarters of the Arab League, where be was leading the Egyptian team at the conference of Arab foreign ministers, and notified him that Egypt found the German explanation "unconvincing," the agency seid.

Statement by Scheel

The government spokes:nan said the German explanation given by Mr. Steltzer to Mr. Zayyat on Saturday contained statements by German Foreign Minuter Walter Scheel about the Munuich incident.

The spokesman said the explanations given by Mr. Scheel cootained "contradictory" points.

He said Mr. Scheel was quoted es saying that Germany "regrets" that some Arab nations did not issue statements of condemnation over the Munich affair. Be sald this "cootains unacceptable and illegal interference from the Federal German government in the affairs of Arab governments in order to force them to give a certain opinion concerning their foreign policy."

The spokesman said Germany was probably participating in a direct manner in the implementation of a plan in collusion with Israel and the United States to create a justification to strike at Lebanon and Syria.

The spokesman said the Munich massacre may have heen prepared at the highest levels "to make out of it a pretext to carry out l'engeance operations such as the ones carried out against Syria and Lebanon.

The Egyptian government finds la strange that the Pederal German government did not hundreds of thousands of Palestinians from their land," he said. "It is also strange that the Federal German government did not denounce the killing of women and children by Israeli planes

BEIRUT, Sept. 11 (NYT).— President Suleiman Franjieh of Lebauon has begun a diplomatic effort to get major powers to tackle the Palestinian refugee problem that underlies much of the violence in the Middle East.

The forthcoming General Assembly of the United Nations has been asked by Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to consider international measures to protect "innocent victims" such as airline passengers from acts of political terrorism,

Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel said that the immediate problem in the Middle East is not the quest for a peace settlement but the control of the commandos, with Israel prepared to strike against commandos operating from neighboring countries if their governments are unable or unwilling to eliminate attacks on Israel and its citizens.

Mr. Fraojieh, reflecting the moderate Arab viewpoint, aaid that "before considering a curb on violence undertaken by a group of people in a continuous state of . . . provocation, we should tackle the causes of this despair and put an end to [Israell] provocation."

Viet Cong Issues a Staten | | | | | | U.S. Sees Nothing New

By Craig R. Whitney

SAIGON, Sept. 11 (NYT) -The beloved Northern Communist Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam issued today what it called an "important statement" of its terms for a peace settle-

U.S. government analysts here said the statement represented "absolutely no change" from previous Communist terms proposing a three-part coalition goveroment, but that it rephrased them less harshly than in earlier

The statement was made in an English language broadcast from Hanoi. The key paragrapos in the long broadcast said:
"A solution to the internal problems of South Vietnam must proceed from the actual situation -that there exist in South Viet-nam two administrations, two armies, and other political forces.

"To achieve national concord, the sides in South Vietnam must unite on the basis of equality, mutual respect and mutual non-elimination. Democratic freedoms must be guaranteed to the people. To this end it is necessary to form in South Vietnam a provisional government of national concord with three equal segments to take charge of the affairs in the period of transition and to organize truly free and democratic general elections.
"Should the U.S. government

really respect the South Vietnamese people'a right to self-determination and seriously negotiate to peacefully settle the South Vietnamese problem, the Provisional Revolutionary Government is prepared to reach agreements to the effect that neither a Communist regime nor a U.S. stooge regime shall be imposed on South

Whether the Vietnamese have decided to end the attacks is not known. But it is clear from recent conversations with South Vietnamese officials in all branches of the government here, in Washington and in Paris that convinced that Sen McGovern will not win and that it has nothing to lose by attacking him in the strongest possible terms.

There have been at least seven editorials attacking him since the middle of Angust. Last Wednesday, for example, the announcer said: "McGovern must be mentally III, judging from the boastful and ill-mannered speeches be has made against the Indochinese peoples. We do not feel shame. It is McGovern's compatriots who must feel ashamed for having produced such dirty politicians."

legedly sent to a White House aide or Nixon committee officials. Nor have agents found anyone who acknowledges receiving such memos, although the self-described participant said he supplied the FBI with the names of persons to whom memos were directed.

Included in the memoranda according to the Democrats informant, were details of telephone conversations by Democratic party leaders in which politics and their personal lives were discussed.

The conversations, the informant told Democratic investigators, were intercepted from telephones inside Democratic National Committee Headquarters at the Watergate, and monitored across the street in Ream 723 of Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge. The informant said he was assigned by Mr. McCord to be the principal monitor of the telephone taps from late May until the abortive mission into Democratic headquarters nn June 17. In addition, the FBI has been told that Mr. Hunt and Mr. Liddy were also inside the Watergate the same morning and escaped across the street to Howard Johnson's when the police arrived. According to the informant, neither Mr. Liddy nor Mr. Hunt is the White House aide to whom Mr. McCord allegedly directed at least one of the memos.

The informant, who no longer works at the Nixon committee said he was instructed by Mr. McCord to transcribe by typewriter everything that was said over two phone taps, but that one of the taps-one on the phone of former Democratic National Chairman O'Brienfailed to work properly. The informant was the source of Wednesday's charge by Mr. O'Brien that part of the purpose of the June 17 break-in at the Democratic headquarters was to repair such a faulty tap.

On most days, according to the informant's account, he would be called at his monitoring post by Mr. McCord and asked if there were any "hot items." If revealing information of a rsonal or political nature was obtained the informant said Mr. McCord would then come to the motel, read the transcript and type a memorandum dealing with the "hot item." The memos would begin, "Con-

TORREMOLINOS, Spain, Sept. 11 (Reuters).—Executives of the world's sirlines will meet here tomorrow in hopes of securing a bigger part of the merket in vacation charter flights.

About 300 representatives of the 90 international airlines operating regular services plan to meet for six weeks. They will discuss more than 3,000 proposals for retaining or modifying existing fares.

One thread that links most of the proposals indicates that the airlines—which have been chiefly concerned with the luxury traveler and the businessman-are ready to take a closer look at the booming mass-travel market The proposals before the en nual conference of the industry's ruling body, the International Al many airlines want to remove the regulation that allows then operate charters only to "af finity groups" - organizations of persons with common interests. Supporters of the move believe it may be at least two years before it is adopted. Officially, the conference is designed to examine additions or deletions in member airlines' fares structures. Any new fores are to go into effect next April after approval by governments. Airline sources expect that most of the fares will remain unchanged but that many lower ones will be edded.

Swiss Will Not Buy U.S. or French Plane

Swiss government announced today it has shandoned a $350million project to modernize its air force by the purchase of American Corsair or French Mirage-Milan fighter planes. Defense Minister Rudolf Gnaegi said that pending a reappraisal of Switzerland's defense policy. was weighing an offer to buy 24 reconditioned Hunters from Britain for a total of about $20 million.

The Swiss Air Force chief, Brig. Eugen Studer, immediately opposed the decision.

"As long as I am here, I do not want the air force to become an antique shop," he told newsmen. He said the government's decision against the Corsair purchase would weaken Switzerland's combat readiness. A government communiqué said "political and military considerations" prompted the decision against the American plane and the Mirage-Milan, rated clearly inferior, to the Corsair in Swiss tests cartier this year. The government also pointed to its efforts to curb the deficit in the federal budget.

Bankers Trust has the best kind of European information sources: branches or affiliates in London, Paris, Brussels, Frankfurt, Rome and Zurich.

But when we want to take a really close look at the financial situation as it affects Europe and the United States (and our customers), we do something more. Personal communication is the best way to keep up to date. So we get a lot of valuable people together in one room and have them talk to each other for a few days.

This time it was in Paris.

We got our international bankers from seven countries together, all sitting around a table, able to draw on each other's experience, sources of information and intuitive feel for situations. In other words, a private summit meeting of twenty top men from two continents.

But it was not a meeting concerned with blue sky and lofty philosophical exchanges. The men who attended (this as well as other meetings like it) are involved in day-to-day decision making, the level where information and new thoughts get put to work in a hurry.

That's why Ellsworth Donnell, head of our International Banking Department, was one of those who went to Paris. Along with John Hawes, our top foreign exchange trader. And John Tritz, head of our short term money desk. Alfred Holden, our top international economist. Hilary P. Reddy, head of the Credit and Loan Division of our International Banking Department. As well as all of our branch managers and traders from Europe.

What got the most attention in these discussions, not surprisingly, were those matters that matter most to American corporations doing business overseas.

The health of the European economies. Availability of international funds. Interest rates. Currency movements. Foreign exchange rules and restrictions. Tax treaties and laws. Short and long term investment opportunities. Trade prospects. Innovations in the financial markets. And so on into the night.

International banking may be more art than science.

But either way, soaking up the details is what enables us to continually refine and update our strategies; strategies that make money for our customers and ourselves. That's why we'll go right on holding these meetings, rotating them through the financial capitals of Europe.

The fact that the most recent meeting was held in Paris was because Paris is one of the financial centres of the world. Not because it was spring.

much from the United Nations on the Middle East-except moral platitudes. This is despite the fact that the UN, in a very real sense, created the Middle Eastern deadlock as it exists today, both by action, in 1948 and 1956, and by inaction in 1967. But on Sunday even the platitudes failed to gain official expression in the Security Council.

That body met to consider the Israeli bombings of Syria and Lebanon. The Soviet Union and China were quite willing to condemn Israel for those bombings, but refused to admit any link between the raids and the acts of terror that inspired them. The United States refused to accept a resointion that did not include a condemnation of terrorism. It was, in fact, moved to one of its very rare vetoes. As a result, the councll did not condemn the raids, nor the terror. nor did it make any real effort to get at the sources of both the bombing and the terrorist actions.

The Israeli government has maintained that a policy of stiff retaliation is its only defense against a form of attack that knows no national boundaries, is directed by no nationality or internationally responsible agency, and is governed by no rules acceptable to law or reason. Through these raids, it hopes to bring pressure on neighboring governments to keep the fedayeen under control, and to a certain extent it can claim to have succeeded.

The obvious international answer to the

The world has long ceased to expect very Israeli point of view is to outlaw the exportation of terror, or its nurture in national sanctuaries.

> This has not been done, and the Security Council did not even approach the subject . in any realistic manner. That part of this reluctance stems from a variety of political and economic considerations is obvious enough; that it also arises from Israeli tactics should not be ignored by the Israeli government. Israel may consider its bombing strikes "part of a continuous war," as Lt. Gen. David Elazar put it, in which it is, "unfortunately, impossible always to avoid harming civilians." But to kill, however unintenticnally, women and children in attacks of mere retaliation is not easily condoned.

There are still avenues through which some solution of the Palestinian refugee problem can be approached. They would not satisfy the fanatical wing of the fedayeen organizations, who are vowed to the destruction of Israel. Control of groups of this kind. whether they call themselves Black September or Tupumaros, IRA, or whatever, must he approached at a different level, domestically and internationally. But the nations of the Middle East can surely find. or be directed toward, some road to agreement that will make acts of terror, on land or in the air, repugnant to the overwhelming majority, and offering no advantages to anyone. It is all too clear, however, that those nations will not be helped to find such a road by the United Nations, in Security Council assembled.

China's Cloudy Outlook

In the wake of recent upheavals, the internal politics of Communist China appear to be even more of an enigma than those which characterized Stalin's Russia. The real issues behind the latest struggle for power —and subsequent purge—are far from clear. • the 1967-68 cultural revolution and its after-Did the struggle center on personalities or substantive disputes? Were foreign as well as domestic policies at the heart of the matter?

The new attacks by Peking on the late Marshal Lin Piao, designated heir of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, and the rewriting of history on his role in Communism's rise to power, suggest continuing unease about the military sopporters on whom he may have counted in the alleged coup d'état that preceded his death. Moscow, denying Peking's charges of complicity with Marshal Lin, asserts that the struggle at top levels of the Chinese leadership "Is not ceasing, between representatives of different tendencies." The tug-of-war over the succession to Mr. Maowho, at 78, is treated as a semideity—is hiv only adjourned temporarily at Premier Chou En-lai, now clearly No. 2 in the hierarchy, is the administrator who runs the country from day to day, although he consults the chairman on important matters and takes major decisions in his name. Yet it is not certain how long Mr. Chou could hold things together after Mr. Mao's death. In any event, he is 73 and most other top leaders in Peking are well along in years. The country's third-ranking leader, Marshal Yeh Chien-ying, who is Lin Piac's replacement as acting head of the armed services, 1s also 73.

A new generation of Chinese leaders is thought to be waiting in the wings. But little is known about them. Some inkling may be gained if a Communist party congress and a National People's Congress meet soon, as rumored, to approve new party and state constitutions as well as to reconstitute central-government and . Communist party leadership, decimated in the purges of

Of some thirty cabinet ministers, fewer than half have been seen or mentioned in the last year or two. Of the 21 Politburo members and four alternates named at the last party congress in April 1969, sixteen have vanished or become inactive; five of them, including top leaders of the army, air force and navy, disappeared with Marshal Lin Plao. Of the five members of the most powerful party body, the standing committee of the Polithuro, the only two who are left are Chairman Mao and Premier Chou.

The present policies of the victors tend toward pragmatic solutions to China's internal problems and moderate foreign policies in contrast to the "strict constructionist" ideology at home and adventurism abroad that seemed to be Peking's orientation in some past periods. At home, there is a more realistic approach to education. wage incentives in industry and private vegetable plots in agriculture, with economic development taking increasing priority over arms production.

Abroad, there is a willingness to be patient about Talwan, to seek accommodation with the United States and Japan and to practice more open diplomacy elsewhere while remaining on guard, if not bostile, toward a hostile Soviet Union. But until the succession to Mao Tse-tung is settled, the stability of the present government and its policies will remain a question mark

Dr. Kissinger's visit to Moscow is a followup to President Nixon's momentous summit meeting with Russian leaders in May when a new and-it is hoped-developing working relationship was established between the two super-powers. Thanks to Nixon's efforts, America's position is now stronger than it was then.

His blockade of North Vietnam, then new and problematical has proved to be an ace, if not necessarily the acc of trumps. At home, almost everything has prospered, from the economy to the election campaign. Russia's hopes of dealing with Scn. Often in the past Israel has distinguished itself for military actions that were so clearly selected that the chance of involving innocent people was limited to a minimum The actions in Syria and Lebanon seem to deviate from this tradition and it is to be hoped that Israel reverts to its former methods. In the Security Council the Israeli actions have been minntely discussed. ## The Palestinians: A Reminder Through Horror

By Jim Hoagland

BEIRUT.—"All glory to the from the eastern Mediterranean men. All glory to the men of September. We were not known in Munich before you. The gold medal you have won at Munich is for the Palestine na-

In the early morning hours of Thursday, the clandestine Voice of Palestine radio beamed this message across the Middle East as the world recolled in horror for the second time in three months at violence and bloodshed rising from conflicts over a land that has been erased from

Western maps—Palestine. The killing of 11 Israeli Olympic team members at Mimich by Palestinians and the slaughter of 26 tourists at Tel Aviv airport May 30 by three Japanese gunmen working with a Palestinian guerrilla group have at least shocked the world into remembering the 1.5 million Palestinians who have been scattered into exile and treated as a forgotten people. Palestinian organizations

But if they feel that the world has forgotten about Palestine, the people from that land do not allow themselves to forget it. Given little opportunity by most of the Arab lands where they have located to settle into permanent new existences, the Palestinians show little indication that they would want to do so. The word "Palestine" is spoken with a sharp mixture of longing and bitterness in their squalid. overcrowded retugee camps that dot the Middle East.

'Paradise'

"I still rem" "or the beauty and greenness of Palestine," a middle-aged carpenter said in a week. "That is my home. It is paradise. Why else would Christ and other prophets have chosen to come to that land if it was not paradise?"

In the 63 United Nations-spousored refutee camps, where nearly 650 000 persons live in varying degrees of poverty and discomfort, and in fashionable drawing rooms in Beirut where affluent Palestinians meet their friends. Palestine is kept alive in hones and dreams and untiring talk of going back.

But their former homes in Heifa Ladda or Ramallah are now in what is Israel or on land under Israeli occupation. And to add to their dilemma, few Palertinians show a genuine desire to go back to live in a country where Jews are in the majority.

"The dream seems to become a little more impossible every year," a Western official connected with refuses affairs says un-happily. "Now it seems to be the Palestinians who will become the world's eternal allens." Adds a Palestinian businessman who works in Kuwait: "The horrible thing is not having any secu-

The Munich killings come at a time when many Palestinians seem to think that they are at a crucial point in their history. With the emergence of the clearest signs yet that Jordan and Egypt are moving toward peace arrangements with Israel, recent weeks that they are about to be abandoned by Arab governments and their cause sacrificed.
The guerrilla organizations sav they have warned that this would be the case since September, 1970, when Arab countries accepted an Americau peace initiative that focused on reopening the Sucz Canal and resolving the status of the Israeli-occupied Sinal peninsula instead of dealing with the Palestinian problem. Israel appears in any event to be highly reluctant to discuss the future of the Palestinians beyond offering compensation for homes, farms and businesses that the Palestinians assert is woefully insdequate:

Mrs. Meir's Words

Arab propagandists frequently quote with ridicula remarks made in a 1969 newspaper interview by Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, who sald: There was no such thing as Palestinians. When was there an independent Palestinian people with a Palestinian

Bible as Canaan and stretched coastline and Sinai to east of the Jordan River. Occupied by many invading forces in its long history, it came successively under Hebrew, Assyrian, Persian, Roman, Arab and Ottoman rule. The British assumed a formal mandate over it in 1920.

Designated by Britain as a na-tional home for Jews. Palestine was partitioned by the United Nations in 1947 into two states. one Jewish and one Arab. But communal riots, a civil war and m 1948 an invasion by Arab armies that Israel repelled led to an extension of Israel's borders and the extinction of the Palestine state with Jordan absorbing Arab-occupied territory on the West Bank of the Jordan River. During the fighting, 700,000

Arabs fled their homes in what became Israel. Some 300,000 remained. Less than 100,000 of the refugees have been allowed to return for family and hardship reasons in the past 34 years. More than 85 percent of those who went into exile were poor and largely uneducated. They crowded into emergency camps set up by the United Nations in Jordan, Lebanon and Syria and in Gaza, an Egyptian-administered strip of territory wedged between the sea, Sinal and Israel. The 1967 Arab-Israeli war created another exodus sa Arabs fled before advancing Israell troops. More than 200,000 refugees in camps in Gaza and the West Bank, which were occupied by Israel, crossed the Jordan River. Another quarter of a mil-lion Arabs left their homes to become refugees in East Jordan. Camp life in many places is dismal by any standards. Some camps, such as Chatile, just out side Beirut, are shanty towns of rusting corrugated tin huts, with no hot water and precious little tso water at all.

In the winter, rains turn the camp into a vast red mudhole and cold breezes sweep through the makeshift structures. Often barred from taking any but menial jobs in the local economy and squeezed out of overcrowded schoolrooms, Palestinian youths in the camps are easily recruited into goerrilla or ganizations in Lebanon and Syria, where the guerrillas have effective control over many of

UNRWA continue to run eight camps in the 175 square-mile Gaza strip, which now has a registered refugee population of 324,567 persons, There are nearly refugees in the West Bank in 20 camps.

Jordan's traditionally bedouin east bank had to absorb more than 550,000 refugees, about 40 percent of whom live in a total of 10 camps. Since Jordan has given more work opportunities to Palestinians than have some other Arab countries, a large number of Palestinians have been able to move into the local economy.

But the bloody fighting be tween Jordan's army and Pales-tinian commandos in 1970 and 1971 has left deep and lingering scars. Palestinians, who view themselves as the most modernized and progressive of Arabs, have long chafed under Jordan's ruling monarchy.

About 350,000 Palestinians now live in Lebanon, roughly half of them in 15 refugee camps. Lebanon's government, delicately balanced between the country's nearly equal Christian and Moslem populations, is not eager to absorb the Palestinians.

Lebanese officials are also nervous that the strong guerrilla influence on the camps and the presence of thousands of commandos will invite more Israeli teprisal raids.

Syria, which has 10 refugee camps on its soil, faces serious economic problems without considering 168,000 refugees in camps, Syrian residents assert.

Egypt, which bas traditionally. been wary of accepting large numbers of Palestinians Who might have an effect on Egypt's turbulent internal politics, recaived less than 20,000 refugees from the 1967 war.

Educated Palestinians play important roles in commerce, education and technical fields throughout the Arab world, and especial-ly in the underdeveloped states of the Arabian peninsula and Arabian gulf. NEW YORK.—An Associated Press dispatch from Saigon ou An analysis of North Vietnamese imports was made in the opening weeks of the Nixon ad-Sept. 3 included this passage: ministration. It appears in Na-tional Security Study Memorandum No. 1, known as NSSM-1,

"The Seventh Fleet disclosed that one of its vessels had intercepted and seized two and a half tons of rice that it said the Chinese had tried to float ashore from a freighter [off North Vietnam] in waterproof plastic and burlan sacks "

The sentence was well down in a roundup of military act in Vietnam that day. The U.S. Nevy's seizure of rice being shipped to North Vietnam was evidently regarded as routine. But for some readers it raised significent questions.

When the United States began its blockade of North Vietnem last May, President Nixon spoke of "tanks, artillery and other advanced offensive weapons supplied to Hanol by the Soviet Union and other Communist nations." He said the "one way to stop the killing" was to "keep the weapons of war out of the hands of the international outlaws of North Vietnam."

The announced seisure of those bags of rice raises the question whether the American blockade is, in fect, limited to military sup-

Navy's Orders

The question was put to a Pentagon expert. In reply he first pointed out that this particular sizure of rice took place near Honis Island, off the southern panhandle of North Vietnam 75 miles above the demilitarized zone. He called it a "conduit area," where any food "has to be for troops or for those working the supply system." But this point turned out to be of no signifi-After checking with higher

"The policy is to interdict all supplies going into North Vist-nam by sea."

In short, the United States is carrying out 'a total naval blockade of North Vietnam, not one limited to military supplies. What makes that highly important is the fact, not widely understood, that only a tiny proportion of North Vietnam's im-Palestine was known in the ports by sea is of a military of the rest being raw materials and food." There is of course the view, expressed by a number of military figures, that no distinction should be drawn between Vietnames military and civilian activity or personnel: They are all helping the war effort, after all, and if they called that off they would have no trouble importing the food they need.

But our moral system does not allow such obliteration of the military-civilian distinction. all recognise that it is one thing to bar, say, missles from Cube and another to cut off food and everything else. One of the Nazis condemned to death at Nuremberg was the wartime governor of Holland who caused a civilian famine by ordering the dices destroyed. Considerations of this kind are . not likely to move Richard Nixon, Henry Kissinger or the other nien who believe that American honor requires bombing, mining and shalling Indochina indefinitely to keep Nguyen Van Thieu in office. But the rest of us might have a feeling in the pit of our stomach the next time Nixon tells the heartrending story of little Tanya, the 12-year-old Russian girl who saw her family die one by one in the famine during the German siege of Leningrad

Mollifying Strategy By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

McGovern's

HOUSTON-"What the hell is he doing here?" grumbled an engineer at Houston's Manned Space Center watching Sen. George McGovern on a guided tour. "I suppose he'z going to do a '180' on space too."

Thirty minutes later, McGovern flirted with just such a 180degree turn away from his adamant anti-space spending policy. Telling unemployed space technicians, "I believe in the space program," McGovern added he wanted unmanned, not manner spacecraft. But, he went or Chris Kraft of the Manned Spac Center had revealed to him tha the new space shuttle is needed manned or unmanned. Thus die McGovern, having denounced the space shuttle all year, suggest he might reconsider.

That suggestion, an impromptu notion of McGovern's not discuss. ed with advisers, fits into his post-Lebor Day campaigning: court voting blocs alienated by his past policies, telling them what they want to hear.

Moreover, McGovern's emphasis on mollifying estranged voter hiocs contributes to themelessness in his campaign. And although he escaped last week from the August doldrums with his best speeches in months, there is still no sign his campaign is cutting significantly into President Nizon's immense lead.

His Strategy

The reason for McGovern's emphasis on appeasing critics derives from his unique nomination, in the face of hostility from sub-stantial elements in the Democratic party. Accordingly, his strategy is to devote September to winning back enough disaffected Democrats to launch an effective October drive against Mr

Thus, when McGovern came to Los Angeles last week, his high command in Washington ordered some "Jewish event" to fight leakage of Southern California Jews out of the Democratic party into Mr. Nixon's arms. McGov. ern's California operatives hastily arranged a Wednesday morning meeting with Los Angeles rabbis -by chance coming the day after the Olympic Village tragedy. Consulting Jewish advisers back East over the telephone Tuesday night, McGovern developed a position President Nirou cannot match: no diplomatic relatioos with Egypt until Cairo restrains Arab terrorists (who are not under Egyptian control anywey).

McGovern, told that the rabbis distrusted his preference for Sen. J. W. Fulbright as Secretary of State, promptly informed them Fulbright's pro-Arab views now disqualified him. Later Wednesday morning, addressing the machinists union convention, McGovern drew his biggest applause by suggesting protection of American products (though, as a free trader, he ooses the Hartke-Burke tariff bill). Forewarned that few machinists are doves, be omitted his usual anti-Vietnam pronounce-

Arriving in Dallas Wednesday night, McGovern dropped his habitual denunciation of oil millionaires and added praise of Lyndon B. Johnson. In Houston Thursday, while saying space spending should drop to $2 billion from $3.2 billion, he made the breathtaking promise of another job for every unemployed aerospace worker.

Dutton View

Such conventional political trimming has generated protests from McGovernite ideologues (in-cluding Gary Hart, head of Mc-Govern's national organization) that this is not the George Mc-Govern of the primaries-blaming it on advice from McGovern aide Frederick G. Dutton. Though a icading theoretician of the New Politics, Dutton believes McGovern must first woo back Democratic defectors

That course, however, togs Mc-Govern's intended theme of em-bracing the beleaguered little man. More comfortable with Vietnam as an issue anyway, Mc-Govern was so busy last week buttering up rabbis, labor leaders and aerospace workers that he failed to focus on fat cats living s tax-deductible high life thanks to President Nixon. Glad to be away from the snakepit of his Washington headquarters, McGovern was invigorated on the road last week. But spontaneous airport crowds meet. ing him in Los Angeles, San Diego and Dallas were pitifully small. In Los Angeles, he found organizational work just beginning. His Dallas rally attracted only 2,000. mostly youths, blacks and Chica. nos. McGovern, in pursuing the business of placating his critics, had not yet turned the corner.

The five-bedroom Beverly Hills house with its guest cottage and office is run like a business on a strict budget and a staff of three (two housekeepers and a secretary), who have been with Mrs. Douglas for years. For dinner parties, the same outside cook and butler are called in to prepare and serve the food. Closets are in such permanent order that Mrs. Dongles can phone in directions for the table setting down to the last detail.

Jeanne Masoero, Angela Flowers, 3/4 Portland Mews, D'Arblay Street, London, W1, to Sept. 22. In the tradition of great English painters, Jeanne Masoero and landscapes fragmented in concerned with the portrayal of light and its effects. On large canvases, or groups of canvases, she paints what at first seem misty and indefinite shapes which, on closer inspection, define them-selves as entities emerging from, and remerging into, the evanes-cent background. These are profound and reposeful works.

Fifippidis, Ansdell Gallery, Monmouth Street, London, WC2, to Sept. 23.

Filippidis works from an inner and mystical conviction, and though using contemporary techniques and ways of seeing, is nevertheless clearly in color end spirit in the Byzantine tradition. special interest is her series "Figure in Space."

Gerry Pine, Erica Bourne Gallery, 14a Temple Fortune Parade, Finchley Road, NW11, to

One of the most promising of this year's diploma students at the Royal College, Pine paints very green English gardenscapes space and vibratory and luminou in color. His recent work may be seen as the logical outcome of a grafting of cinematic closeup ento pre-Raphaelite detail of observation.

Parsenn Sally Cutouts, DM Gallery, 72 Fulham Road, London SW3, to Sept. 30.

Two writers, two painters, a photographer, an actress and a lighting expert live in a rural farmhouse called Parsenn Sally. They have collaborated in a series of cutout wooden shapes, painted in primary colors, some nf which are intended to enliven our prosaic days, others of which make cynical comments on our present-day lives.

Margaret Lovell, Marjorie Parr Gallery, 285 King's Road, London SW3, to Sept, 30.

Margaret Lovell, still in her early thirties has had an admirable training in carving and modeling in England, Italy and Greece. With equal facility she works slate, marble and alahaster, wax, plaster, copper and bronze (she must be one of the comparatively few contemporary sculp-tors who has worked in a bronze foundry). Her ideas, mostly organic, happily match up to her enviable command of technique.

Le Ba Dang, Frost & Reed, 28 Bruton Street, London, W1, to

Sept. 30. This Vietnamese painter, now living in France, is a passionate colorist. Combining the color narmonies of the East with the painterly techniques of the West, he produces fine, dreamlike nightpieces of much subtlety.

Christopher Wood, Mercury Gallery, 26 Cork Street, London, W1, to Sept. 30.

Christopher Wood, who killed himself before his 30th birthday. had, apparently, all the gods on his side. Handsome, talented, and a friend and familiar of all the great artists of his time, his suicide in 1930 appeared to be inexpheable. But I believe, even from the evidence alone of this exhibition of his drawings and watercolors, that the explanation is simple. It is clear that in his late teens and early twenties he was already a master in his own genre; and that there was no direction in which he could develop. His work accomplished, he decided to leave before decline, decay and repetition set in.

A New Book on Literary Lights

"... Hemingway stands when he writes. He stands in o pair of his over-sized lonfers on the worn skins of a Lesser Kudu-the twoescriter and the reading board chest-high opposite him:

ONDON THTI.-Christy Brown, author of the best-selling novel "Down All the Days." writes (as most of the literate world already knows) with the small toe of his left foot. This is a fact that, although it has little essential relevance to what appears on the printed page, is closer to being relevant than Hemingway's Lesser Kodu stance. The trivialization technique of the Paris Review, in its interviews with famous men of letters, has course not gone unnoticed. But the deadening effect of this apquantity.

Penguin Books has just published a volume called "Writers at Work," which consists of 15 interviews that appeared in the Paris Review over an 11-year period-from 1957 to 1958. It seems to one reeder that no more than four of these really alive, even sporadically: the inter-views with Allen Ginsberg, Harold Pinter, Boris Pasternak, and Evelyn Waugh.

Others.

The other interviews are with E. M. Forster, William Faulkner, George Simenon, Angus Wilson, Frost, Ezra Pound, T. S. Eliot, Aldous Huxley, Ernest Hemingway, Saul Bellow and Norman Mailer. These are vitiated by a number of failings on the part of the interrogators, which give a total impression of amateurishness nr. at best, a misconception of the craft of inter-

To ask, in conversation with E. M. Forster. "Can you say anything about the process of turning a real person into a fictional ' is not to put a question but an invitation to make a speech or to produce a thumbnail essay on a very tired theme. Similarly, to say, "I have always been worried by the suddeness of Gerald's death in The Longest Journey.' Why did you treat it in that way?" is to sak a question that Forster had been answering regularly for at least 50 years, and answering in unchanging terms.

After slogging through more than 200 pages of such stuff, with only intermittent flashes of life, we come with relief to Thomas Clark's interview of Allen Ginsberg. Dropping his clown's mask, Ginsberg talks with sustained brilliance, and lucidity about poetic technique and anything else that enters his mind. His talk is laced with vivid homo-

The Pasternak piece, by Olga Carlisle, also speaks with the voice of the writer himself, if less pungently than the Ginsberg. Miss Carlisle is the daughter of the Russian writer Leon'd Andreyer, and Pasternak had known both of her parents. She had three talks with Pasternak, who "declined to give me a formal interview." Miss Carlisle should have been grateful that he declined: The trouble with most of the other pieces in the book is precisely that they are "formal" interviews. Ilgnoring a scrap of paper on his door that said, 'I am working now. I cannot receive anybody, please go away," she knocked: "Almost immediately the door was opened . . . He

She asked him, when they were alone at the dining-room table one afternoon, about the significance of the Zhivago character in the body of his work. "When I wrote Dr. Zhivago," he replied. "I had the feeling of an immense debt toward my contemporaries. It was an attempt to repay it ... wanted to record the past and to honor in 'Dr. Zhivago' the beautiful and sensitive aspects of the Russia of those years. There will be no return of those days of our fathers and forefathers. but in the great blossoming of the future I foresee that their values will revive . . .

The book closes, memorably, with Harold Pinter.

Interviewer: Has it ever occurred to you to express political opinions through your characters?

Pinter: No. Ultimately, politics do bore me . . . I distrust ideological statements of any kind ... I'll tell you what I really think about politicians. # When you're always flying from one problem to another, you deserve a little understanding.

Travelling for business is never easy.

You rush out of a tough meeting. Fight the traffic. Finally get to the airport just in time to catch your flight.

And what can you expect when you arrive? More of the same.

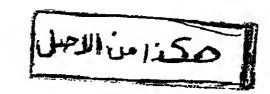

Obviously Air France can't change all that. But we understand how hectic and difficult your life can be. So we do everything we can to make the part of it you spend with us as relaxed and enjoyable as possible.

That means the attention

you deserve. Service and entertainment when you want it. Or the choice to work or rest undisturbed. Maybe it can be summed up best by the savoir-vivre that knows the value of a smile.

Bahamss, Sept. 11 was incorrectly ren AP-Dow Jones disthat shareholders of iral Resources Propad approved the sale haur's main assets to sources Ltd. directors of Global in principle to tha change rates established by the Smithsonian agreement of Dec.

U.S. officials have resisted any strong upward movement in in-terest rates, for fear of aborting the current recovery in the domestic comony. The IMP recognized this dilemma for American policy-makers, but argued for a strong monetary policy that would not have "a retarding effect on economic growth."

The IMF's comments were in the annual report of the executive director, submitted in advance of the annual meeting to be held here beginning Sept. 25. Potential Discound

The question of harmoniza-tion of interest rates as tha Europeans like to refer to it er Credit is only one of many potential sources of disagreement among the major nations. Who are try-ing to achieve a modernized monetary and trading system.

Reveryone agrees that, a long period of painfully slow negotiations on key problems, including the future role of the dollar, is just at a beginning stage. Some of the feruse were outlined in detail last week in a special IMF. report on monetary reform and a report (mostly on trade issues) by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development Among other contentious points is U.S. insistence that the monetary and trade problems are m-extricably interlinked.

The annual report itself breaks little new ground. It reviews the "major disturbances" in the international monetary system over the past 18 months, culminating. in last year's float of the U.S. dollar, the realignment of currencies at the Smithsonian, and the interruption of a brief period of calm in early 1972 by the floating of the British pound.

In the non-financial area, the report said that the economic outlook at mid-1972 was more hopeful than at the beginning of the year; although inflationary pressures are still strong.

It said that world trade volume in 1971 grew at a rate of 5.5 per-cent, or considerably lower than during the 1960s;

As it has done before, the DMP pointed a finger at the U.S. hal-arce-of-payments delicit as the key factor in "disequilibrium" in international payments relation-ships. This time, however, it put part" of the U.S. deficit, namely "the rather widespread surpluses of other countries, particularly Germany and Japan."

The report also said that the overall value of member: reserves increased from $125 billion to $131 billion, or about 5 percent, because of currency realignments. The effect on the price level compared to May, 1971, was about 7.4 percent. Thus the loss of purchasing power of reserves was put at about 23 percent. The report observed that the record growth in reserves during 1971 was produced largely by tha "mprecedented U.S. deficit, which in terms of special drawing rights came to $30.5 billion. The annual report throughout uses the SDR, rather than the dollar, as the unit of account. Thus, for example, the world's official gold holdings are defined as SDR 41 billion, unchanged, out of total reserves of SDR $121 billion, up from 75 billion the Pontiac Has Design 'Breakthrough' General Motors' Pontiac says that a design breakthrough will give its emission control-equipped 1973 models better performance than its models of the previous two years. This is in contrast to complaints from other manufacturers that emission control gear required for 1973 models has resulted in a drop in performance and gas mileage. P. James McDonald, Pontiac's general manager, says the division has developed its own approach to 1973 clean air standards that has improved the drivability, performance and fuel economy of its cars under "all conditions."

North Sea Oil Output and Profit May Be Bigger Than Predicted

LONDON, Sept. 11 (AP-DJ).—Rowe & Pitman, a securities firm, says that North Sea oil production may be much higger and more profitable than has been forecast,

A peak production of 5 million barrels 2 day, involving 10 barrels a day, would be "by no means unexpected," the firm said in a report on North Sea oil. Official estimates of peak North Sea production are much lower than 5 million barrels a day. But Rowe & Pitman's report said some sources have suggested that not only are private estimates within the Department of Trade and Industry much higher than its official forecasts, but the industry's spending plans as a whole also indicate greater optimism than spokesmen have so far indicated. The firm said it believes that its estimation of a net profit of $1 a barrel on North Sea crude may ultimately prove to be conservative. On the basis of a flow rate of 5 million barrels a day and at a net profit of $1 a barrel, Rowe & Pitman estimated production would be worth £800 million a

Expert Criticizes Schmidt Project

FRANKFURT, Sept. 11 (Reuters).—One of West Germany's leading monetary experts, Wilhelm Hankel, poured cold water on the monetary proposals which Economics : Minister Helmut Schmidt said he would put to his European : leagues in Rome

Mr. Schmidt told a press con-ference last week that Common Market central banks should withdraw investments from the Euro-dollar market. These holdings could then be frozen with the U.S. Federal Reserve Board, Bundesbank president Kar. Kla-sen explained later.

Mr. Hankel, currently president of the Hessische Landesbank-Girozentrale and formerly head of the money and credit section of the Economics Ministry in Bonn, commented today that lending dollars to the Fed would fortify the dollars privileged rosition, allowing the United position, allowing the United States to finance a permanent payments deficit. This in tur-would merely add to the volume of extra-territorial dollars.

Short-term paper with a maturity of up to four years will not be counted in calculating the domestic banks' total quote of non-residents' fixed-interest security boldings.

The modifications represent a distinct easing of the foreign ex-change controls imposed in June, banking sources said.

The ruling will end the gradual reduction of such securities hold-ings, a process which had been quietly but steadily under way since Germany introduced the Bundesbank officials noted that banks were generally refused permission in the past to sell such holdings to non-residents, even when they argued that the sales were merely compensation for sales or redemptions.

Banks will be able to act as a sort of clearing house for their non-resident clients, balancing sales and purchases of mark papers internally.

Similarly, foreign investors will be able to switch their boldings within their overall portfolio level, or acquire new mark securities where the bank has hold-ings to sell within its overall quota, the officia's said.

U.S. Aims at Agreement Prices Drop On Money by Mid-1973

ters).-Treasury Under Secretary Paul Volcker said today the United States is aiming for a general agreement on a new international currency system by next summer. He told a congressional economic subcommittee that the goni is to reach a basic agreement-a basic consensus-by next summer, although he acknowledged all details may not be worked out by then,

Under questioning hy Jacob Javits, R., N.Y., Mr. Votcher refused to be pinned down on whether the United States will offer a specific proposal for a new monetary system at the International Monetary Fund meeting later this month.

He would only say the United States will be 'making proposals as avidly as anyone else-prob-ably more avidly."

Intervention To Go On Mr. Volcker said the United States will continue to intervene in international currency markets to ward off speculation.

He sold U.S. intervention has been limited so far in terms of numbers of currencies, amounts and periods of intervention. But he said the United States must continue to be prepared to acquire needed foreign exchange to fi-nance such future intervention. Existing so-called swsp facilitles or mutual credit facilities provide such a vchlcle for obtaining foreign currencies, Mr. Volcker said. "Foreign exchange will drawn not in a passive manner ufter intervention by other countries, but for use in the exchange markets by the United States in such amounts and at such times as we believe the market impact will be favorable and help to curb unwarranted speculative forces,"

Diminishing Role

On the question of gold, Mr. Volcker said that raising the official price of the metal is not a solution to international monetary problems.

He repeated the U.S. view that The originel "buy Japan" de-cree, adopted by the cabinet on the role of gold in the international monetary system "should and must continue to diminish." Sept. 20, 1963, was designed to Mr. Volcker noted that some people argue that a gold-based system could be given additional about how to dispose of a surplus liquidity by raising its price from time to time.

In a separate development, the ministry reported that imports licensed in August, a leading indicator of actual import perfor-mance, totaled a record $2.124 billion, up 54.6 percent from a year earlier. It ettributed the unusually high gain to the ending of a threcmonth strike by Japanese seamon in July. The ministry said raw materials, especially feedstuffs and crude oil, showed particularly large gains because inventories had become depleted during the strike. Imports of consumer goods also rose sharply, reflecting hetter economie conditions in Japan, the ministry added.

Mr. Volcker noted that gold is in short supply and the question of its role must be resolved in future international currency talks.

He said the two-tier gold system "has been one means of coming to grips with destabilizing speculation in gold markets." Adoption of paper gold-special drawing rights—has given ex-plicit international acknowledgement to the fact that new means should be found to provide appropriate growth in world reserves, Mr. Volcker said, Commenting on the IMP an-

They added that the increase does not apply to loans for in-dustry, export or housing purposes, and is a result of the increase in reserve requirements for outstanding credits made by hanks and other financial establishments announced at the end of August as part of the government's anti-inflationary measures. The sources said the selective nature and moderate size of the increase make clear the fact that banks do not intend to pensiize industrial or private investment, and the move is thus likely to have little effect on French economic expansion.

Glamours Lose Heavily. Said to Be Overpriced

By Alexander R. Hammer NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (NYT) .-The stock market posted its fifth consecutive loss today as declines outnumbered advances by a more than two-to-one ratio in continued light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The higgest losers were the glamour issues, which continued to be under selling pressure. There were reports that some of the institutions were moving out of these stocks. Losses in many of them were two points or more. Harry W. Laubscher, senior vice-president of Walston Co., in an interview said that "many of the giamour issues are overpriced and we would recommend the purchase of stocks with low price-earnings ratios."

Other brokers noted that in vestors have remained cautious for several weeks because of their concern over rising interest rates and the troubled Mideast situa-

Prices opened slightly lower and then for the most part moved downward for the balance of the session, finishing at or near their lows for the day.

The weaker performance was pinpointed in the Dow Jones industrial average, which closed down 6.24 at 955,000, its low for the session. At 10:30 a.m. the indicator was off 0.60. Turnover on the exchange slipped to 10.71 million shares from 10.98 million on Friday as institutional interest slackened.

Glamours were depressed throughout the session on profittaking. Ara Services plunged 5 1/2 to 161 1/2, AMP 4 to 99, Texas Instruments 3 1 2 to 163 1.2, Natomas 2 3/4 to 56 3/8, 3 M 2 1/2 to 76 3.4, International Business Machines 2 1/4 to 396 1/3 and Electronic Data Processing 2 to

One of the best gainers among the 15 most actively traded issues was American Telephone & Telegraph, which rose 1/2 to 44 5/8. The issue was the most actively traded of the session on a turnover of 184,400 shares.

Most of the airline stocks were weaker. Analysts noted that while Labor Day traffic appeared good for the carriers the rest of the month of September is usually slow.

Trans World Airlines closed off 3'4 to 42 5 8 ln active trading. Eastern was down 1 3/8 to 23 3.4, National lost 1 1/2 to 36 1/2, Delta tumbled 1 3/4 to 51 1 2 and United eased 7/8 to 31 7/8. Engelbard Minerals & Chemical gained 1 3/8 to 30 3'4. The firm said it will make an announcement tomorrow of national environmental prominence.

American Stock Exchange prices also fell, the exchange index dropping 0.14 to 26.32. Decining issues outnumbered advancing ones. 608 to 249, with 302 stocks closing unchanged. Volume rose to 2.852 million shares from 2.69 million Friday. Meanwhile, the government bond market closed about inchanged on the day with little activity except for the overnight reverse repurchase operation hy the Pederal Reserve. The cor-porate sector was off 1/8 to 1.4

Few players appreciate that artificial bids can be divided paradoxically into two categories -natural and artificial. A natural-artificial bid is one in which the bidder coincidentally has some length and strength in the suit named. In general, this is preferable to the artificialartificial bld, when the bidder has nothing substantial in the suit he happens to be bidding.

This point is important to players who use double-barreled Stayman. In this convention, two diamonds in response to one no-trump promises values for game, and perhaps slam, while two clubs promises nothing in particular and might be made with a very weak hand.

Using this device there are many hands on which the responder has a choice: Two diamonds or two clubs. In such cases he should make a naturalartificial bld in the minor in which he has some strength.

IF American critics and readers wilting brought back remain unaware of the inservatory." Glenny remain unaware of the innovative aspects of Alexander to let Solzhenitsy: Solzhenitsyn's style and continue to describe him as an "old-fashloned realist," it is because most. available translations of his work have ignored his stylistic complexity or were unable to find adequate English equivalents for his verbal inventiveness. Discussing a pirated German edi-tion of "August 1914" in a recent interview. Solzhenitsyn warned against "stylistic leveling" and "slicing off the verbal contours" when translating his work into another lauguage. With the exception of "One Day," translated by Max Hayward and Ronald Hingley, and of Thomas P. Whit-Hingley, and of Thomas r. wint-ney's version of "The First Circle," leveling and slicing is precisely what Solzhen tsyn's English translators have been doing to his prove; and none of them levels and slices with greater abandon than Michael Glenny, the translator of "Stories and Prose Poems" and now of "August

Glenny's approach to the prob-lems involved in translating Solzhenitsyn may be demonstrated by cling a passage from the prose poem Take Segden" (Sol-zhenikyn himself calls these short pieces "tiny stories"). An anonymous but reasonably accorate translation appeared in the Intellectual Digest in April 1971: There's the place where one would like to settle forever. There one's soul trembling like the air, would course between water and sky, and clean pro-found thoughts would flow," And here is Glenny's version of the same passage as printed in "Sto-ries and Prose Poems": "Here is somewhere to settle forever, a place where a man could live in harmony with the elements and be inspired." This, in a nutshell. is the manner in which most of "August 1914" has been translated

Long, convoluted sentences are simplified and cut into bite-size chunks; passages of stream-of-consciousness in which the narration shifts from the third person to first or second are erased by transporting everything into the third person; rapid staccato. elliptic exclamations are converted into matter-of-fact, smooth, neutral English; and poetic imagery is systematically eliminated or toned down throughout the Early in the novel, in order to

Olympic Flame Snuffed Out

MURICH, Sept. 11 ONYT).- the U.S. Olympic authorities. It So now the gamen cometh to take the last 10 plennig out of the meter and turn off the Olympic flame. In Israel there is a week of national mourning. From Syrian and Lebanese villages rises the smoke of vengeful bombs. In Olympic Stadium tonight the band serenaded Avery Brundage. Six days too late, the Games of the 20th Olympiad creaked to a close, the happy Games, the Freundlichtspiel that became a carnival of blood and Should there be a 21st Olym-piad? Should Montreal try to do it all over again four years hence? Not, it says here, unless there is a thorough house-cleaning first. The world cannot afford to trust another undertaking of such magnitude to the clutch of atrophied eggheads who made a botch of this one.

The Olympics may or may not have outgrown their sweatpants, but the International Olympic Committee as now constituted has truly outlived its time. If Games are to continue, then the celf-perpetuating oligarchy that calls all the shots must be replaced from the top down by younger men in touch with the world around them.

Incredible Insensitivity

The Olympics have been described, not always without reason, as an orgy of nationalism that exacerbates international relations, but that wasn't the cause of the ghastly violence here. The IOC nabobs cannot be blamed for the loss of 17 lives. But the incredible insensitivity with which they reacted to murder should disqualify them permanently from further participa-tion in sports. The body count was hardly completed when they raised the rallying cry: On with the dance!

The West Germans had invested six years and $700 million in the enterprise, yet even so, many felt dismay and shame when play was promptly resumed. It is reported that Willi Daume, president of the Organizing Committee, who had said he could not recommend resumption, purpose-ly stayed away from the 45-minute meeting where it was decided to carry on.

Not everybody displayed a similar sense of delicacy. Brundage's speech at the memorial service for the slain Israelis was the last of any consequence that he will make as president of the IOC. In the very first sentence, he referred to the blood-letting as an "intrusion into peaceful Olympic precincts." It wasn't just plain, cold-blooded murder. It was a slaughter that set the women's 110-meter hurdler back

They saw, among other things, the summary banishment of two U.S. quarter-milers without tho pretense of a hearing, without the courtesy of prior notice to

This year is no different, and I have heard many of my dearest friends say. "If McGovern is elected, I'm taking the family to Canada," Or "If Nixon gets in for another four years, I'm leaving the country." The trouble with these threats is that the Canadi-Buchwald ans take them seriously. Since they are so short on population, the idea of 40 or 50 million new immigrants makes their mouths water. The Canadians start building new homes and achools to accommodate the disenchanted American voters. Shopping centers are constructed, contracts are given out for drive-in theaters and motels.

The Canadians repaint all their buildings and touch up their lawns to make the Americans feel at home.

Night classes are given on how to treat the new arrivals. Wel-come Wagons are beefed up and new factories are built to provide jobs for the millions of Democrats or Republicans who say they cannot live in the United States under a Communist Democratic or Fascist Republican regime.

To facilitate the move, Canadian customs officials are told not to open any luggage of American emigrants. Canadian Mounties are instructed to go easy on traffic tickets.

No expense is spared in pre-paring for the influx of people, But what inevitably happens is that after the election the 40 or 50 million people who vowed they would go to Canada change their minds and remain in the United

I saw it happen when John doesn't win the presidency, they Kennedy beat Nixon. I saw it happen again when Lyndon Johnson beat Barry Goldwater, and again in 1968 when Richard Nixon defeated Hubert Humphrey.

Canada was waiting with welcome arms for all the people who said they couldn't live in the U.S. anymore.

Nobody came. All the hopes and dreams of the Canadians to double their population overnight vanished, but it left a taste of bitterness that lingers on.

The greatest cause of anti-American feeling in Canada can be attributed to our presidential election-year promises which people in this country have falled

How long can the Canadians keep building up their country for people who promise to go there, and then refuse to go? At the moment Canada is in a terrible quandary. The ambassador in Washington has reported that 45 million Republicans have vowed to go to Canada if George McGovern becomes President of the United States. He has also reported that surveys indicate that 40 million Democrats will come if Nixon stays in the White House. . . .

Canada must decide in the next few weeks whether to go through the motions of preparing for them, or to ignore these vows as idle threats. Suppose this time all the people who say they're going to Canada really do? Yet suppose the Canadians spend all the money and nobody shows up?

It seems to me it's incumbent on every American voter not to say he's going to Canada unless he really means it. If he is sincere about it, he should notify the Canadian immigration author.

I know it's hard to ask people at the height of an election campaign not to make threats they have no intention of keeping about moving out of the country. All I'm suggesting is that if you want to tell someone you're leaving after the election, tell you're going to France, where they don't care if you come or not.

Fisherman rides along the beach at Oostduinkerke, Belgium.

Trawling for Shrimp—From Horseback

By Jan Sjöby

OSTDONKERKE, Belgium (IHT).—Shrimp are usually caught in big trawls pulled behind big, heavily-powered trawlers, usually, in these rational days, equipped with radar and sonar and an automatic pilot connected to the latter. Or else they are scooped up by little kids, prowling a beach with a 50-cent hand net, bought at the nearest waterfroot tackle In Oostduinkerke on the Flemish coast, south of Ostende, the commercial fishermen eatch their shrimp from horseback They are, reportedly, the last vestiges of an age-old trade along the low, sandy Belgian beach stretching some 45 miles along the southern end of the North Sea. The reason is said to be that the topography of the lower beach—the one still submerged at low water—suits the hooves of the sturdy steeds who pull the mini-trawls along the packedsand bottom. Another is, apparently, that the Oostduinkerke littoral mini-fauna—including smaller species of crustaceans—offer perfect feeding ground for les petites crevettes grises or kleine-garnalen as they are known in fisherman's Flamish. The fishing method is very simple. The fisherman saddles nis horse, harnesses a small trawl to the stern end and hangs wicker baskets on both sides.

The rider dons pilskins rubber boots and a sou wester. He mounts and the equipage moves into water two to three feet deep before laying out a course parallel to the beach. Horse and rider move up and down the lower beach for an hour, the rider emptying his tiny trawl from time to time into the saddle

When the tide is oot, horses and fishermen return to the dry beach to empty the baskets. After an hour or two, a few pipes of tobacco and a few beers, it is time to go back to meet the incoming tide.

The crerette grise, admittedly, isn't anything like the jumbo shrimp the San Francisco shrimpers bring in, to be French fried and consumed at Fishermen's Wharf and elsewhere. They measure, at best, the size of a brickmason's thumbnail. They can be boiled in brine and eaten like candy or they can be tried in omelettes and seafood cocktails along the waterfront or even in Israway Brussels, an hour or two away by slow auto-

Either way they are delicious. The only problem is peeling them. One can bite off the head and tail and eat them as they are, though. There is a lot of calcium in those shells. Fishing goes on all year around. The shimp, connoisseurs maintain, are best in late-late summer and in the fall.

What Lies Ahead For the World

What's up? Well, in the foresceable future, according to Asian fortunetellers at the second International Predictors Congress just ended in Seoul, we can expect:

Richard Nixon to be re-elected President of the United States. and the Democrats not to win the White House until 1980;

• Taiwan to be merged with mainland China in five or six Vears:

 Reunification of Korea, Germany and Vietnam (in that order) to be possible within 12 years with the Soviet Union and the United States seeking means to maintain world peace (no world wars, but the cold war will go on); Around 1990 a holy man as great as another Christ to appear in Asia northwest of Japan, possibly in Kores.

• A terrible harvest in Asia in 1977 and a devastating flood in eastern Europe in 1984.

World chess champion Bobby Fischer is planning to alter his monastic lifestyle, according to Life magazine. He is reportedly ready to buy a car, a house or an apartment, and start dating more girls but chess will remain his No. 1 interest although some friends are saving he will be married within a year. His lawyers say they have received offers to produce Bobby Fischer chess sets, records, books exhibition games and a chess TV spectacular which taken all together would generate $10 million in two years, but Fischer has not yet signed any contracts, Life said, quoting the champion: "I want to make money but I hate to see the creeps gathering around . . What I really want to do is encourage respect for chess; chess masters should play under superb conditions and be paid as well as top

No comment was the order of the day in Moscow when ex-champion Boris Spassky, the man Fischer beat, returned. "We know nothing about Spassky," said a spokesman for Novosti television. "We know nothing about any interview plans." The newspaper Soviet Sport gave the same reply. "We're not planning anything for Spassky," said an official at the Moscow chess club where the former champion used to play.

Ali gets, next time I want more."
